Reporting the Various Types of Substantive Changes

New programs and some changes to existing programs may require prior approval from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges, our primary accrediting agency. In such cases, this prospectus must be completed. Some changes may require only prior notification rather than prior approval. Please refer to the approval matrix for substantive change procedures. You will also want to review the SACSCOC Policy on Substantive Changes for complete details.

1. The term Concentration is often used interchangeably with other terms such as Designation, Emphasis, Option, Pathway, Specialization, or Track.
